Content

In the course Studio, in semesters 5 and 6, students focus on making, researching and presenting in a hands-on studio environment. In the Third Year the studio is a personal place but it may also be an art, design or performance space, workshop, or a constructed social environment in a virtual space. A collaborative team of two artist-teachers guides the students through the Studio course in the making and the presenting of ideas and images from self-determined, but professional conditions, and how to establish a self-generating studio practice, flexible and resilient enough to endure beyond the nurturing environs of the BA Fine Art Programme.

The team comes up with a specific theme for semesters 5 and 6, which is based on one of the multitude of reference points that an art practice can engage with. The theme provides a coherent Studio course that is built up out of various learning activities. In the third year Studio the students enhance their technical, conceptual and critical thinking skills within a framework of self-directed projects. Besides the teachers in the team, a student can address studio specialists in the Studio Practice, for deepen their knowledge and skills within a specific domain.

Studio field trips to venues abroad and in the Netherlands or a Student exchange between international art schools are organised to broaden horizons. In this way students learn how to expand their cultural awareness and sensitivity for the international content and context of visual art.

The personal Study plan & Study portfolio in the Studio course enables students to manage their own learning more effectively and to support their development and integration of capabilities in preparation for their professional careers. In the context of this process the student is expected to display an independent, creative and inquisitive attitude.
