Content

This module provides an introduction to international business law and the importance of being up to date with rules and regulations to conducting business across borders. Dealing with companies in other legal and fiscal systems may pose serious problems regarding ownership of goods, but also of intellectual property. The validity of contracts may be entirely different in another country and strongly depends on local mores and beliefs regarding what constitutes an agreement. Intercultural differences are nowhere more blatantly apparent than when contracts are negotiated or disputes regarding liabilities have to be settled.

1. Comparison report on trade regulations between three different countries (one non-EU)
2. Report on legal differences between countries.
3. Report on harmonization of fiscal law in the EU.
