Inhoud

Content & working method

The professional development presentation takes place at the green light review of the in-school curriculum. In this presentation, students demonstrate their professional and personal development in relation to the fourth year's learning outcomes. By analysing and connecting learning experiences gained in the in-school and out-of-school curriculum, students convince the assessment committee that they are entitled to exercise their profession as a (starting) architect. In addition, it is important that students address their current and future positioning in the field.

Assessment

The professional development presentation is a summative test in which students demonstrate that they have acquired the master level. In order to evaluate this level in a comprehensive way, the assessment committee convened for the professional development presentation also evaluates review three and four of the graduation project.
