Inhoud

The graduation is the final part of your study at the Hanze University of Applied Sciences. During this phase, you will demonstrate that you have the ability to independently apply your competencies to an assignment based on the industries' practices or real-life cases; at the level of Bachelor of Science. In a broad sense, on completion of the graduation the student must clearly demonstrate that s/he is competent in the following areas of expertise:

1. To work in a structured, project-based and results-focused manner
2. To translate customer's (or stakeholder's) demands in a program of requirements for a product, system or service
3. To apply social and communicative skills efficiently throughout the graduation period.
4. To solve a technical problem by conducting research
5. To apply knowledge and skills in a new situation

These objectives have been derived from the competencies that take a central position during the graduation assignment.
