Inhoud

The importance of improvisation is becoming more and more clear. Improvisation in music serves as a strong means of expressing musical identity, as a basic element of skills and insights in harmony and melody and of course as an artistic practice in itself. Improvisation is important for every musician no matter what kind of music style he or she represents. The improvisation lessons offered at the PCC are focussing on the basic skills of improvisation. You will practice improvisation techniques, styles and approaches in a workshop setting. Music making and collaborative learning are core principles in every lesson of this module.
